Words for Times of Day

In Celan, words for times of day are deeply connected to the natural rhythms of light, shadow, and the flow of time. To harmonize with existing vocabulary and draw inspiration from other linguistic traditions, the root words Kinn (daylight) and Kilv (shadow/time) are introduced.

1. Kinnshal – Dawn (Light Awakens)
 - Root: Kinn (daylight) + Shal (light)
 - Meaning: The time when light awakens, symbolizing renewal.
 - Example: “Var I dren an Kinnshal.” – “I go to the water at dawn.”
2. Kinnmor – Morning (Earth Illuminated)
 - Root: Kinn (daylight) + Mor (earth)

- Meaning: Early morning, when the earth is bathed in light.
- Example: “Kinnmor kal dren nor shal.” – “The morning strengthens with water and light.”
- 3. Kinnlin – Noon (Full Light)
 - Root: Kinn (daylight) + -lin (culmination)
 - Meaning: Midday, when light reaches its peak.
 - Example: “Tal I dren an Kinnlin.” – “I drink the water at noon.”
- 4. Kilvthal – Afternoon (Balancing Light and Shadow)
 - Root: Kilv (shadow/time) + Thal (balance)
 - Meaning: The gradual transition from day to evening.
 - Example: “Nor-var I dren thal Kilvthal.” – “I will go to the water in the afternoon.”
- 5. Kilveth – Evening (Shadow’s Embrace)
 - Root: Kilv (shadow/time) + Eth (embrace)
 - Meaning: The time when shadows deepen and the day closes.
 - Example: “Kilveth dren morl shal.” – “Evening rests under the light.”
- 6. Kilvfah – Nightfall (Full Darkness)
 - Root: Kilv (shadow/time) + Fah (darkness)
 - Meaning: The time when darkness envelops the world.
 - Example: “Var I dren an Kilvfah.” – “I go to the water at nightfall.”
- 7. Kilvlum – Midnight (Shadowed Reflection)
 - Root: Kilv (shadow/time) + Lum (inner light)
 - Meaning: The deep, reflective part of the night.
 - Example: “Tal I kilvlum dren nor veth.” – “I drink at midnight by the water’s shadow.”

Nuances of Quantification and Specificity

Articles (Definite/Indefinite):

Decision: Confirming Celan generally lacks specific articles like "the" or "a/an".

Definiteness and indefiniteness are primarily determined by context, word order (VSO often places known info earlier), or specific demonstratives if needed (though none explicitly listed, could be developed).

Quantifiers:

Ilinor (All / Entire / Whole) : Derivation: Ilin (We/Collective) + -or (Place/Domain)? Suggests "the whole domain of us."

Usage: Placed before the noun it modifies. Ilinor Serin var. (All the Friends go.) Kal Ilinor Terra. (Strengthens the whole World.)

Som (Some / A few / Part of) : Derivation: Coined short word.

Usage: Placed before the noun. Var som Serin. (Some Friends go.) Tal I som dren. (Give I some water.)

Melen (Many / Much / Numerous) : Derivation: Mel- (Thousand prefix) + -en (Honorific/Collective feel)? Suggests a large, respected number.

Usage: Placed before the noun. Var melen Lalin. (Go many They. / Many of them go.) Kal melen dren. (Strengthens much water.)

Felin (Few / Little / Small amount): Derivation: Fel (Small/Young root) + -in (Collective/Plural).

Usage: Placed before the noun. Var felin Serin. (Go few Friends.) Tal I felin Emil. (Give I little food.)

Ekor (Each / Every): Derivation: Ek (Hypothetical root for "one/single" related to numbers?)
+ Kor (Source/Strength)? "Each source."

Usage: Placed before the noun. Kal Ekor Kadron. (Strengthens Each Man.) Var Ekor
Zhaelor. (Goes Every Spring.)
